

Marx on Nature, Philosophy of Nature and Economic Forms of Companies – Alienation from Nature (1848)

By Karl Marx

I. Nature, Alienation and the Soil

And so one is alienated from nature, the soil, one is labouring on the soil, or in the city – alienated further from the soil, and labouring and even forming companies and financial profits, all further alienated from nature.

II. Economic Profits as alienation from nature – ideological mystification of companies

The ideological mystification of companies is that nature is then ideologically offended.

Nature is infinity actually – or nature is what one must call ecology and it is higher than Jewish Kabbalah of stillstand.
